Louisville Celebrates Last Night

Louisville, Ky., July 1—Louisville, hub of the liquor industry of the state last night bade a touching farewell, both tearful and hilarious, to old John Barleycorn.
Thronged filled the downtown streets early in the evening and gave evidence of their intention to make it the "largest evening" of their lives.
Every downtown saloon, bar and third emporium in the city was thronged with jostling, pushing patrons who fought for a chance to push up to the mahogany once more.
One enthusiast in front of a downtown hotel celebrated the "glorious first" by taking a quart of liquor and sprinkling passers-by with it. In the saloons not a drop of beer or light wines was in sight on the bars—it was "whisky straight" for all comers and the tinkling glasses were hoisted as rapidly as they could be filled. Police were stationed near many

Despite the huge crowds there was little disorder and police had no trouble.

No applications have been made for license to sell 2 1/4 per cent beer and light wines. Mayor Rogers said that the City Commissioners will not run counters to the presidential proclamation.

A good band will furnish music for dancing, and there will be other attractions, and in the evening an Old Fiddlers' Contest will be a big feature. Louis Hardin will run an auto bus hourly from town to the beach at a low rate, and as most of the business houses in town will observe a half holiday anyway and the banks and post-office will close entirely, the crowd promises to be a record-breaker. 181 3

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

President Wilson has joined with government officers of England, France, Italy, and Japan in framing a League of Nations to enforce peace, which if ratified by the United States Senate, will deprive our American people of a portion of their sovereignty, and partially destroy the independence of the United States.

He has combined the League with the Peace Treaty in such a way that it is difficult, if not impossible for the Senate to separate the League from the Peace Treaty, so as to amend it.

But some of our Senators have declared that they intend to try and separate the League from the Peace Treaty, and then amend it in such a way as to make it leave the sovereignty of our people and the independence of our country unimpaired.

These facts make an urgent call upon all Americans to do what they can to support our Senators in every effort they make to preserve the full sovereignty of our people and the complete independence of these United States.

Doubtless it is true that England, Italy and Japan want the League in its present form to be ratified by the Senate, since this would give American soldiers and money to help to preserve the independence of these countries, and to maintain their sovereigns upon thrones.

But the fact that these foreign countries want the League ratified in its present form would not justify our Senators in doing it, since this would diminish the sovereignty of our people and the independence of our country.

If our Senators should find that it is impossible for them to separate the League from the Peace Treaty so that they can amend it, they can refuse to ratify these two combined Treaties, for they passed a constitutional power to reject any treaty that the President negotiates. Hence the sovereignty of our people and the independence of these United States depend upon the virtue, the loyalty, the patriotism and the intelligence of our Senators.

SCHOOLBOOK MEN MEET AGAIN TODAY

The fight among schoolbook publishers to procure contracts for four years for text books used by pupils in the public schools of this state began Monday for the second time this year at Frankfort. The first adoption made this spring, while Gov. Stanley was chairman of the State Textbook Commission, was set aside by the court for irregularities. Governor Black, the Chairman of the Commission, then requested the commission to resign, but each member refused, so the commission met Monday to make the adoption as requested by law.

After receiving the bids, which were not made public, the commission adjourned until Tuesday at 9 o'clock.

The Louisville Times Monday said that fifteen minutes before the State Textbook Commission met at noon, Phil Grinstead, co-author with his brother, Wren Grinstead, of the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School, of the speller adopted by the commission at its recent vote adoption, declared that his book would not be offered to the commission. It was the general feeling that the contracts for the six readers published by the John C. Winston Co. of Philadelphia, which company Phil Grinstead represents, were much more important and that he gladly let go of the speller for the reader contract. The speller was to be published by the Transylvania Publishing Company, of Lexington, and it was believed that this company would land the writing book contract as it did before. The fact that the commission cannot make as many changes as before made the situation not so easy for the book men.

Lee Deputy Sheriff Drowned

John Will Jameson, Deputy Sheriff of Lee county and who has resided at Beattyville for a number of years, was drowned in the Kentucky river Saturday afternoon. Jameson was one of the best known men in eastern Kentucky and was known to be one of the best officers in that section. The return home without his master of the high-spirited horse on which the deputy left Beattyville late Wednesday evening caused a hunt for Mr. Jameson. His saddle bags and hat were found on the bank of the river where sharp rocks slope almost perpendicularly from the road. It is believed that the horse threw him and that he was too stunned to save himself from falling into the water. No marks of violence were found on the body.

Jameson was deputy sheriff for eighteen years. He served in the Spanish American War.

DIXIE WAY NEEDS ANOTHER $100,000

Officials and directors of the Dixie Highway Association, at the end of their third day's tour of inspection over the Eastern section of the highway, disbanded Wednesday evening at Knoxville after coming from London, where they passed the second night of their journey.

The party literally passed over, through and under the proposed Dixie Highway. The journey was over wet roads, made unsafe and tiresome by heavy rains, and, except for occasional stretches of hard surface highway, all the vagaries of mountain roads at their worst were encountered. At one point between Jellico, Tenn., and LaFollette, Tenn., two East Tennessee mountain towns, the party was compelled to wait more than an hour while workmen engaged on the proposed route of the Dixie Highway raised to enable the automobiles in which the party was making the tour to pass beneath. The road otherwise was impassable.

Frequent mishaps marred the day's travel. At one point in the Tennessee mountains the car occupied by Carl Fisher, of the Indianapolis Speedway, Indianapolis, and other, slid off the road. At other points machines stuck in the mud and had to be hauled out by hand with ropes, or teams had to be obtained to pull them out of the mud in order that they might progress.

According to officials of the association, the most hopeful signs were that in evidence in the mountain counties of Kentucky and Tennessee, where the roads were at their worst was the visible efforts toward improvements, and the verbal promises from city and county officials along the way that the road would be graded and surfaced in time for the dedication set for June by the association officials.

Road Commissioner Rodman Wiley, of Kentucky, who joined the inspection party at Lexington, on the first day of the journey, assured Judge M. M. Allison, Chattanooga, Tenn., president of the association, that the Kentucky section of the roads would be ready in time for the dedication.

Judge Allison and Secretary V. D. L. Robinson, of the association estimate that the proposed improvements which will have to be made in that time will exceed $100,000, the major portion of which must be spent in Kentucky, before the road can be opened officially, and the traveling public assured that the journey, which is rich in interest and scenic effects, can be made with any degree of comfort and safety.

ADVERTISING INCREASES CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Columbus, Ohio, July 1—"I never saw a church which advertised and didn't have a good attendance," declared Dr. Christian F. Reissner, head of the Methodist Minute Men organization, who is in charge of the church advertising exhibit at the Methodist Centenary celebration.

"The church can't convert empty seats, and the best way to fill them by advertising."
The exhibit is unique, there being not another like it in the country. Church advertisements of every description—10,000 of them—line four walls of a room in American building No. 1. They have been in the process of collection for many years by Dr. Reissner who is head of the Methodist Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. Dr. Reissner was the first Methodist minister to advertise, according to his statement. Sixteen years ago, while pastor of the Grace Methodist Episcopal church in Denver he began. Since then church advertising has become an accepted thing. The original objections to it, that it tended to rob the church of its dignity have fallen away, according to Dr. Reissner. The government's use of it during the war for propaganda purposes did much to hasten this, he said. "The church must sell itself by advertising," says Dr. Reissner. "It must meet the competition of Sunday golf and automobile. If we accept the statement made recently to the effect that 50,000,000 people do not go to church, we may then consider every other person a possible customer."
